Written Responses

1. What does respect look like in the classroom?

Respect means listening when another person is speaking, using kind words, and accepting that classmates may have different ideas. I show respect by waiting for my turn and taking care of shared classroom materials.

2. Give one example of responsibility.

I demonstrate responsibility by checking my tasks, completing them on time, and asking for help before the deadline when I do not understand an instruction.

3. How can kindness improve your school community?

Small acts of kindness help people feel included and supported. This week I helped a classmate organize missed notes and explained an activity without doing the work for them.

4. Why is honesty important?

Honesty builds trust. Admitting a mistake allows me to correct it, learn from it, and show others that they can rely on what I say and do.

Personal Reflection

Core values guide everyday choices, not only major decisions. I can practice them by listening carefully, finishing my responsibilities, helping classmates, and telling the truth even when it is difficult. These actions make our classroom safer and more welcoming for everyone.
